

GUIDING PRINCIPLES AND CODE OF CONDUCT

Consumer Energy Alliance is committed to supporting balanced energy choices and sound environmental stewardship to ensure that everyone in our country has access to safe, affordable and reliable energy to live their lives without burdensome bills or the fear of losing access to energy. This means ensuring a safe, well-maintained, pipeline infrastructure network to serve families and businesses in the most reliable and environmentally responsible way as they bring life-sustaining energy to our communities. With a diverse energy mix, we believe we can help lead our country to increased energy security to minimize imports from unstable or distant nations.

As part of our Pipelines for America campaign, Consumer Energy Alliance is committed to working with industry leaders, to ensure that pipeline operators are meeting the highest standards of safety and are committed to being good neighbors during construction, maintenance and daily operation.

As part of this effort, we pledge to support and stand by the following Principles:

- CEA's members are committed to ensuring that our nation's pipeline system and their operations continues to be the safest and most environmentally responsible way to bring the energy we all rely on every day.
- CEA's members comply with all well-established pipeline safety laws and regulations.
- CEA's members will be good neighbors to property owners and communities as well as good stewards of the environment.
- CEA's members will employ high-tech safety and inspection equipment with an organization-wide commitment to safety.
- CEA's members will keep the public informed about their operations, location and any potential project updates that may impact the public.
- CEA's members will conduct rigorous public safety inspections and drills with local first-responders.
- CEA's members will act with integrity and honesty with all stakeholders.
